

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

In an image processing apparatus, first image data and first discrimination data is generated on the basis of page information described in a page description language. Second discrimination data is generated on the basis of the generated first image data and first discrimination data. Second image data is generated on the basis of the generated second discrimination data and the first image data. An image processing is performed based on the generated second image data and second discrimination data, and the processed data is transferred on a printing medium.